BREAKOUT SESSIONS - AUGUST 28, 2019

---

9:15 a.m. - 12 p.m. SESSION

CHANGING TIMES, COMMUNICATION AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS THROUGH AN EQUITY LENS FOR TEACHING AND LEARNING

In this session, the dialogue will focus on how improving student success and completion outcomes for all students is essential in community colleges and how it is key to closing the achievement gap and ensuring the fulfillment of the community college's mission. Community college educators must examine solid practices that reinforce inequities—and that leads to vastly different outcomes for low-income students and students of color.

Dr. Christine J. McPhail
TTC 4240

1 - 2 p.m. SESSIONS

COMMUNICATION - MYTHS AND MISCONCEPTIONS

Come and experience the first lesson in my interpersonal communication course where students consider the communication knowledge they're entering into the class with and whether it's all correct or based on misconceptions. This is typically a highly engaging, nonthreatening, simple small group and large group discussion with no prior course knowledge needed. Participants will gain insight on communication fundamentals from a scholarly perspective and be exposed to the benefits of in-class discussion and application to everyday lived experiences.

Jenny Ott
TTC 4530

OVERVIEW OF NEW LMS

This session is a hands-on overview of Canvas, the new learning management system. We'll take a whirlwind tour of some familiar features as well as key differences. Bring your questions, and find out what to look forward to in Fall 2020. For more Canvas training, see the Fall Program Calendar.

David Kobb and Molly Pfaff
TTC 2160

STUDENT ANXIETY

Anxiety is an obstacle that challenges many students today, one that faculty may feel unprepared to help their students overcome. Join us as we introduce a novel for an upcoming faculty read and discuss anxiety and today's college students.

William deDie, Lois Baldwin and Urminda Firlan
TTC 4540

SITUATIONAL AWARENESS

In our ever changing society are you prepared? Have you made a plan? Have you thought about the what ifs? We will discuss options as they relate to you and your family at work, home and play.

Don Benthin
TTC 4560

TRIGGER WARNINGS - CAN A STUDENT "OPT OUT" OF CHALLENGING WORK?

What happens if a student rejects reading an assigned text? This workshop explores ways of preparing students for a challenging reading, as well as framing productive discussion. Time for discussion is included.

Brian Olson and Isaac Turner
TTC 4550

UNDERSTANDING INTROVERSION AND EXTROVERSION IN THE CLASSROOM

You'll find a mixture of introverts and extroverts in any classroom. So, what does this mean and how should this inform how modern higher education classes are taught? In the United States, our culture favors extroverted personalities over introverted ones - in K-12, higher education and in most industries and places of employment. During discussions of creating a diverse and inclusive environment for student success, introversion and extroversion awareness should also be included in these conversations and efforts. During this presentation, we'll define extroversion and introversion according to the MBTI, discuss the neurobiological differences between the two, learn how to identify students who are actually engaged introverted personalities vs. those students who are not engaged and provide practical strategies to engage both extroverts and introverts in the classroom.

REDESIGNING STUDENT AFFAIRS FOR SUCCESS AND COMPLETION

Student success and completion are at the center of many conversations taking place in community colleges. This session will focus on the unique role of student affairs professionals in these endeavors. The intent of the session is to place the spotlight on the important work of student affairs practitioners as well as share ideas of best practices in the field.

10:45 - 11:35 a.m. SESSIONS ACCESSIBILITY ROUNDTABLE

Universal design and accessibility are terms that we have heard as important for an inclusive environment in the classroom. We know what those terms mean, but how do they impact our approach in the classrooms? At times it may seem like an imposition. At other times it is an intuitive mindset when designing our courses. The accommodation letters for students that we receive at times seem insurmountable or impossible for our classroom. This roundtable is designed to discuss what accommodations mean and how to approach situations in the classroom when students make requests beyond the accommodation. We will discuss the demystification of disabilities and ideas that have worked and not worked for instructors in a judgment-free zone. Communication is key when helping students who work with Student Access as well as aiding instructors to develop teaching tools that can benefit all students. Bring your questions as well as experiences to discuss and create a community with your fellow faculty members. Come for a lively and inspirational conversation to stimulate creative approaches to creating a more inclusive classroom environment.

Veronica McCann, Jamie Rix, Lois Baldwin
TTC 3250

BUILDING MOMENTUM

CAPTURING THE STUDENT VOICE: REVIEWING THE FIRST YEAR OF KALAMAZOO VALLEY'S STUDENT VOICES ADVISORY COUNCIL

This session will focus on the development and implementation of Kalamazoo Valley's Student Voices Advisory Council (SVAC). The main goal of the SVAC is to gain insight into how students experience Kalamazoo Valley Community College, as well as students' thoughts and opinions about day-to-day operations on campus. Uncovering the direct experiences of our current students has better equipped us with information needed to make positive changes to programs and services provided across the institution. Assembling this council has allowed us an avenue to capture qualitative measures of student satisfaction while simultaneously improve student engagement. Come hear about Kalamazoo Valley's approach and future plans we have to infuse student voices into our work.
